Republicans and Democrats Divide.

In the county election Tuesday the republicans elected four candidates and the democrata five. The republicans elected were Durbin, county treasurer; Yost, county clerk; Salisbury, sheriff; Prosser, clerk of the district court. The democrats came through with Cochran, surveyor; Grant, county judge; Miss Chappell, superintendent; Maloney, coroner; White, commissioner,

In the election politics played little part, or rather party lines were obliterated. Yost's majority is in the neighborhood of 1300, Durbin over 700, Salisbury 700; then the voters switched and gave the democratic nominees for the remaining offices majorities ranging trom 300 to 700.

On the head of the ticket the republicans have a majority of 300 or 400, which is about the normal majority for that party in the country.

In North Platte the percentage of straight ballots cast was small; in one ward out of 260 votes cast only twenty ballots were voted straight, and twelve of these were socialist.

The result shows that neither democrats nor republicans are inclined to stay with their party candidates; that friendship or qualification means more than partizanship. This tendency to ignore party lines in local politics has been growing for several years past and will probably continue to become more popular.

Why Not Sell Instead of Buy.

In Will Mankin's Weekly it claimed Nebraska can produce about everything needed for the family. While the claim may be a little extravagant, it is true in a great measure.

The country around North Platte will produce in aboundance everything that soil and sunshine will make grow. There is a fortune for some one that will grow celery; the pickles that are shipped into our town every year would make a farmer rich; and the same applies to onions, cabbage, potatoes and all kinds of farm produce to say noth ing of staple farm crops. If one-third the farm land was tilled it would save shipping in a pound of anything.

With plenty of feed in sight the hogs raised would be ten times the present number. What would be the next step?

A packing house. A produce exchange. . A beet sugar factory.

west want our meat, vegetables and called by the illness of a brother. grain. Yet we pay thousands of dollars in freight every year to bring into North Platte what can be grown right here in abundance. Instead of being importers we should be exporters. Already this fall we have shipped in three cars of cabbage; three-fourths of the celery we consume is grown elsewhere; in the spring of the year we ship in carload after carload of potatoes; fourstanding we have a mill that makes as good flour as any; in fact every year Lincoln county imports tens of thous-ands of dollars worth of produce that should be grown at home.

Railroad Legislation.

In 1909 forty-one legislatures passed 664 laws regulating the railroads in some manner. In 1911 forty legislatures were in session, but the product of their activity was only 276 new rallroad laws. This decrease is held by the rallway business association to be a sign of "returning sanity" - an evidence that railroad baiting is now out of fashion and that a period of peace for members of the Indian Card Club Wedthe corporations is in sight. ## Road Completed to Gering.

A special from Gering to the Omaha Bee dated November 8th says: The Union Pacific track was completed to the city limits Monday afternoon and Tuesday noon reached the station grounds. A small jubilee was held this afternoon when the steel passed the station site, but the celebration proper is fixed for December 1, when arrangenents of an extensive character are being made to commemorate the event. A passenger train, the first lover the new North Platte-Gering extension, the time when it was first made known that the line would be built. It is intended as a cutoff for the main line between North Platte and Medicine Bow, saving more than forty miles besides running on an almost perfect water grade. Although the company has never officially stated that such is the intention, it is a well known fact, and it is believed here, that the cutoff will be pushed to completion within the next year. Right-of-way is already purchased for the twenty odd miles lying between this point and the Wyoming state line. Passenger service on the the North Platte-Gering line is to begin immediately after the celebration on December 1, the company having stated that they would run" the first passenger train on the day of the cele-
